

Writing Coaching and Tutorial Service

Need some writing help?

- Drop in to our free tutorial clinic at the Chapman Learning Commons from 3pm to 7pm Monday to Friday: <http://learningcommons.ubc.ca/what-we-offer/writing-centre/>
- Make an appointment with a tutor at Ponderosa Annex C from 10am to 3pm Monday to Friday: <https://ubcca.mywconline.com/index.php>
- Take a non-credit course online or in-class to improve your writing (see other side).
- Contact the Academic English Skills (AES) program to see if they can offer you free coaching: <http://cstudies.ubc.ca/academic-english-support-program/>
- Find free self-learning resources online: <http://cstudies.ubc.ca/writers-workshop/writers-toolbox/index.html> or <http://cstudies.ubc.ca/writing/resources.html>

Services offered by the Writing Centre:

For the 2013-2014 Winter Session, we offer:

- An expanded list of courses (see other side of this handout)
- Free tutoring
- Online self-learning resources
- Online tutoring through WriteAway (limited to English 112 students for the 2013-14 school year)
- Tutor-led workshops
- Tutor-led writing groups (by request)

Most students who use our services meet with tutors one-on-one. Tutors may provide writing coaching or content-based tutoring (grammar, mechanics, approaching the writing process, etc.) based on the student's needs and goals for the session.

Our tutorial/coaching sessions are free, as are our workshops, self-learning resources, and writing groups.

What can I expect from a session with a Writing Centre Tutor?

- 20 minutes or 30 minutes, with the option to book back-to-back (depending on the location of your session) spent setting or addressing your writing goal(s)
- A professional, friendly, knowledgeable tutor to help guide you and answer questions
- The possibility of an ongoing conversation with the same tutor surrounding your project or specific writing concern
- Referrals to other UBC services or print/online resources, if applicable
- A polite "no" to requests for proofreading – we take UBC's academic integrity policies very seriously

Remember: plan ahead and start your sessions early. The more time between your first meeting with a tutor and the project deadline, the more helpful your sessions will be.

Writing Centre Academic Courses

We offer the following courses for a fee* to anyone looking to strengthen their academic writing skills. Please see <http://cstudies.ubc.ca/writing/academic-writing.html> for full details.

* If you are part of the Academic English Support (AES) program, AES will pay your tuition for one of these courses. To learn more about AES, please visit <http://cstudies.ubc.ca/academic-english-support-program/>.
