

Alex Kramer

I am a MSc student in the Soil Science program in Faculty of Land and Food Systems working with Dr. Maja Krzic and Dr. Brian Wallace. I graduated from the University of Victoria with a Bachelor's of Science in Microbiology in 2016. I started my Masters research project in September 2018 after taking some courses as an unclassified student at UBC. My project is looking at long term carbon storage in semi-arid grasslands and that ecosystems ability to become a carbon sink.

This is my first time TAing APBI 200 which I am very excited about as this is the course which made me want to pursue a graduate program in this field! I hope I can share my love for soils with everyone.
